Iraqis End Political Deadlock

Deal with Sunnis raises hopes for drafting of constitution

BAGHDAD | In a political breakthrough, members of a Shiite-dominated committee drafting Iraq's new constitution reached a deal Thursday with Sunni Arab groups concerning their representation on the panel.

The agreement came after weeks of tough talks and just two months before a deadline for completing the new charter. The compromise, which could prove as significant as January's historic elections, was expected to yield a constitution acceptable to all Iraqis, anchoring America's efforts to help transform Iraq into a stable and functioning democracy.

The stalemate had threatened to torpedo Iraq's carefully choreographed political process, which enters its final stretch with two nationwide votes scheduled for later this year. It also heightened sectarian tensions at a time of marked escalation in a two-year insurgency waged by the fringes of the once-powerful Sunni Arab community.

Under Thursday's agreement, 15 Sunni Arabs would join the 55-member committee in a parallel body. That 55-member committee already includes two Sunni Arabs. That group of 70 would make its decisions through consensus and then send those decisions to the 55 legislators for ratification.

Significantly, the agreement also revealed a newfound desire by the Sunni Arabs to rejoin the political fold. Their boycott of the January elections left them with only 17 of parliament's 275 seats. The deal also highlighted the realistic approach being followed by Prime Minister Ibrahim al-Jaafari's Shiite-dominated government on the question of political inclusion. HAMZA HENDAWI (AP)

Not Quite A Cat Burglar

Auckland, New Zealand, police broke down the door of a home after receiving an emergency call apparently made by a cat, Agence France Presse reported. The pet cat called the 111 emergency number while walking on a telephone fax machine, alerting police. When they couldn't get a response from inside the house — the family was out at the time — they smashed their way in. The family returned later to find a note explaining the situation. (EXPRESS)

WAR ON DRUGS

Careful What You Wish For

A Welsh assembly member who supported a new drug detection machine tested positive for marijuana while demonstrating it, Agence France Presse reported. William Graham of the Conservative party had asked police to come to the Welsh assembly Wednesday and demonstrate the "Ion Track" machine, which found in a hand swab analysis that he had been in contact with the drug. "I can't think of where I could have got it from," he said. Edwina Hart, the social justice minister, also tested positive. The machine can detect traces days after someone has come in contact with drugs, from sources as indirect as cash that was handled by a drug user. (EXPRESS)

At a fancy banquet in April, Tampa officials bestowed the first Livable Roadways Award — for commitment to pedestrian safety — to the Seminole Hard Rock Hotel & Casino. But during the next two months, the Metropolitan Planning Organization learned that roadway near the casino is missing chunks of sidewalk, has few crosswalks and lacks a wheelchair ramp, the St. Petersburg Times reported. Further, no sidewalks lead to the casino, a wall blocks a sidewalk, forcing pedestrians into the road, and cars drive on a service road used for walking. Turns out, the casino won the award simply because it was the only applicant. Authorities are now admitting the award process was flawed. (EXPRESS)

Boston, Colo., Lead In Pot Use

New report identifies places in U.S. where drug is most used

WASHINGTON | Both college towns, Boston and Boulder, Colo., share another distinction: They lead the nation in marijuana use. Northwestern Iowa and southern Texas have the lowest use.

For the first time, the government looked at the use of drugs, cigarettes, alcohol and various other substances, legal as well as illegal, by region rather than by state for a report Thursday.

Federal officials say the information will help states decide where they should spend money for treatment and prevention programs.

For marijuana, 5.1 percent of people around the country reported using marijuana in the previous 30 days. In Boston, the home of several colleges, 12.2 percent reported using marijuana in the previous 30 days.

In Boulder County, the home of the University of Colorado, 10.3 percent reported using marijuana during the same time period.

The survey also measured binge drinking — defined as five or more drinks in one setting. Nationally, 20 percent of people reported one or more episodes of binge drinking during the previous month. (AP)

Memo Sparks Calls for Iraq Inquiry

Democrats voice fresh concerns after flap over Downing Street report

WASHINGTON | Congress should conduct an official inquiry to determine whether President Bush intentionally misled the nation about the reasons for toppling Saddam Hussein, a senior House Democrat suggested Thursday.

New York Rep. Charles Rangel was among Democratic House members who participated in a forum to air demands that the White House provide more information about what led to the decision to go to war in Iraq.

"Quite frankly, evidence that appears to be building up points to whether or not the president has deliberately misled Congress to make the most important decision a president has to make, going to war," said Rangel, senior Democrat on the House Ways and Means Committee.

Rep. John Conyers and other Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee organized the forum to investigate implications in a British document known as the "Downing Street memo." The July 2002 memo says the Bush administration believed that war was inevitable and was determined to use intelligence about weapons of mass destruction to justify the ouster of Saddam.

U.S. officials and British Prime Minister Tony Blair deny the assertion about intelligence and facts being "fixed," a comment that the memo attributes to the chief of British intelligence at the time.

"This is simply rehashing old debates that have already been discussed," White House press secretary Scott McClellan said Thursday. PETE YOST (AP)

California Shaken By Third Strong Quake in a Week

YUCAIPA, CALIF. | A moderate earthquake shook most of southern California on Thursday, startling people and knocking items off shelves and desks, but there were no immediate reports of significant damage or injuries.

The early afternoon quake had a magnitude of 4.9 and was centered near Yucaipa in San Bernardino County, east of Los Angeles, according to the U.S. Geological Survey. About 25 aftershocks followed in a little over an hour.

"All of a sudden I heard a loud rumbling sound, kind of like thunder," said Nick Brandes, 25, manager of a store in Yucaipa. "At the front, all the customers were in a panic. They were all just in a hurry to get out."

It was the third significant quake to hit California this week: A magnitude-5.2 quake shook Riverside County on Sunday, and a magnitude-7.0 quake struck Tuesday under the ocean 90 miles off northern California. (AP)

Panel OKs Heart Pill For Blacks

FDA advisers clear way for first drug meant for racial group

WASHINGTON | Government advisers recommended approval Thursday for what could be the first drug targeted to a specific racial group.

The Food and Drug Administration's cardiovascular drug advisory panel voted 9-0 in favor of allowing sales of the heart failure drug BiDil.

A clinical trial of the drug in black Americans was halted early when it became apparent that those using the drug did better than those not using it.

That trial, on just over 1,000 individuals, was launched after the FDA turned away the drug following a study involving all races that showed little improvement — but also gave hints that blacks might have had some benefit.

The maker, NitroMed of Lexington, Mass., then decided on a trial using blacks only, a population that has more than twice the rate of heart failure as whites.

Of the nine advisers who voted for approval of BiDil, two said the label should not be race-specific.

The FDA will now evaluate the study and recommendation before deciding whether to grant approval for sale of the drug. (AP)

More Free Places to Picnic

Forest Service scraps entrance fees at 500 outdoor recreation sites

WASHINGTON | The Forest Service is eliminating $5 and $10 recreation fees it charges at about 500 picnic areas and trailheads after outdoor enthusiasts and Western lawmakers complained.

The fees also could disappear at other recreation areas among thousands operated by the government but will remain at those with restrooms and other amenities under a law Congress passed last year.

The new law "raises the bar for sites to qualify for charging fees so the public can enjoy more amenities," said Forest Service Chief Dale Bosworth.

Nationwide, 61 percent of more than 16,000 sites operated by the Forest Service will be free of charge, officials said.

A law pushed by the Bush administration and signed by the president in December granted longterm authority for the once-temporary fees, but set standards under which they could be collected. It immediately set off a storm of protest, particularly in the West where much of the land is controlled by the government. MATTHEW DALY (AP)

Soldier Charged in Deaths

Murder case brought against U.S. sergeant in killings of officers

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | A U.S. Army staff sergeant was charged with murder in connection with last week's shooting deaths of two Army officers at a base outside Baghdad, the military said Thursday.

Staff Sgt. Alberto B. Martinez, 37, a supply specialist with the Headquarters Company of the 42nd Infantry Division, New York Army National Guard, was charged Wednesday in connection with the June 7 deaths of the two officers at Forward Operating Base Danger, near Tikrit — Saddam Hussein's hometown 80 miles north of Baghdad.

The officers killed were Capt. Phillip T. Esposito, 30, of Suffern, N.Y., and 1st Lt. Louis E. Allen, 34, of Milford, Pa. Esposito was company commander and Allen served as a company operations officer.

The soldiers were killed in what the military first believed was an "indirect fire" attack on the base. An indirect fire attack involves enemy artillery or mortar rounds fired from a location some distance away.

The military initially concluded that a mortar round struck a window on the side of the building where Esposito and Allen were.

But a criminal investigation was launched after it was determined that the "blast pattern" at the scene was inconsistent with a mortar attack.

Martinez was charged with two counts of premeditated murder, said a statement by the Multinational Task Force in Iraq. Martinez currently is at a military detention facility in Kuwait.

The 42nd Infantry Division is responsible for a vast section of northern and central Iraq, a mission it's had since January. (AP)

AL-ZARQAWI SAID TO BE BEHIND SPIKE IN ATTACKS

U.S. Air Force Brig. Gen. Don Alston said Thursday that Iraqis are tiring of the insurgency's heavy civilian toll. He blamed al Qaeda in Iraq leader Abu-Musab al-Zarqawi for the nearly 1,100 violent deaths since the Shiite-led government took office seven weeks ago. "The Iraqi people are increasingly exposing the insurgency," he said. "This is not a popular insurgency." (AP)

Rallies Mark End of Iranian Campaign

TEHRAN, IRAN | A wild and Western-style presidential campaign closed Thursday after a finale of street rallies and ultra-polished ads that highlighted both Iran's fast-moving social changes and how much the crucial election remains up for grabs.

The stakes are high in Friday's balloting because of Tehran's negotiations with the West over its nuclear program and its role as a patron of the Shiite Muslim majority in neighboring Iraq.

"This is more than just who will be president," said Saeed Hajjarian, a top adviser to outgoing President Mohammad Khatami, who was prevented from running for a third term by the Iranian constitution. "This is how Iran will proceed in a very delicate time for this region."

None of the seven candidates was expected to gain 50 percent of the vote Friday, which would force a presidential run-off between the two top vote-getters for the first time in Iran's history. (AP)

Israel Protests EU Contact With Hamas

JERUSALEM | Israel on Thursday protested rising European contacts with Hamas, urging the EU to keep the group on its list of terrorist organizations and warning that talking to the Islamic militants undermines Palestinian moderates.

Three senior Hamas members said their group has been talking to European Union diplomats regularly.

EU officials denied the contacts, but said meetings with Hamas may be inevitable now that Hamas won control of dozens of towns in recent elections. Both the U.S. and the EU list Hamas as a terrorist group, but its strong showing in local votes means western leaders must figure out how to handle aid projects in towns run by Hamas-backed mayors. U.S. Envoy: Bin Laden, Omar Not in Afghanistan

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | Osama bin Laden and Taliban chief Mullah Mohammed Omar are not believed to be in Afghanistan anymore, the U.S. ambassador said Thursday, raising fresh questions as to the whereabouts of the elusive terror mastermind.

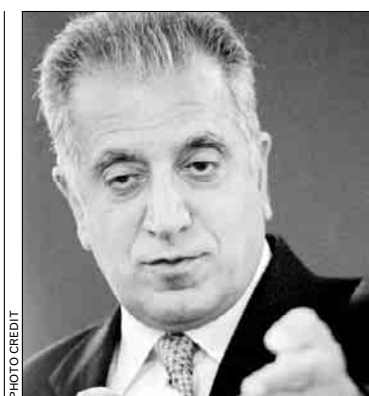

Zalmay Khalilzad, tapped by President Bush to be the next U.S. envoy to Iraq, did not reveal where the two might be hiding or if his comment was based on new intelligence.

"Mullah Omar is not in Afghanistan. I do not believe that Osama is in Afghanistan," Khalilzad said. His comments at a news conference in Kabul came a day after a purported Taliban commander said the pair were alive and well.

Khalilzad defended the failure to catch bin Laden, saying, "It is not an easy job to find one person ... in a vast region."

"Sooner or later I believe firmly that he [bin Laden] will be caught," Khalilzad said.

EU Leaders Put Constitution on Hold

Time needed to assess public's needs, officials say

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM | In a blow to their ambitions, European Union leaders decided Thursday to put on hold plans to unite their 25 nations under a single constitution, saying they needed to reconnect with their people.

During crisis talks addressing a daunting list of problems, the leaders decided a "period of pause and reflection" must follow the French and Dutch rejections of the EU's blueprint for closer integration, said Irish Foreign Minister Dermot Ahern. The EU needs "time to settle down and re-engage with people," he said.

European leaders remain "absolutely committed" to the badly battered and perhaps mortally wounded constitution, which was due to go into effect in November 2006, Ahern said.

It was not immediately known how long the delay in the ratification process would last or what would happen when it was over.

The leaders were keen to sidestep the word "pause" fearing it would signal an end to the ratification process, EU spokeswoman Françoise Le Bail said, adding they preferred the term "breathing space."

The "no's" in referendums three days apart two weeks ago threw the 25-nation bloc into disarray and exposed a yawning gulf between the European elite and voters worried about unemployment, sluggish economic growth and competition from rising powers like China. They also are fearful the EU's expansion eastward is going too far, too fast.

The constitutional treaty can take effect only if all 25 EU nations ratify it either in a parliamentary vote or by referendum. Ten nations have done so. But Denmark, Portugal and the Czech Republic may follow British Prime Minister Tony Blair's example and freeze their referendum plans.

LONDON | Former first lady Nancy Reagan slipped and fell early Thursday in her London hotel room and was taken to a hospital for examination and released, her chief of staff said.

Mrs. Reagan, who turns 84 on July 6, wasn't hurt and doctors sent her back to the hotel for rest, spokeswoman Joanne Drake said.

"She will be following her doctor's advice to limit her activities over the next two weeks until ... full mobility returns," Cathy Busch, an aide traveling with the former first lady, said in a statement. (AP)

Study: Americans Avoid the Movies

Poll shows 73% eschew the theater to take in their films at home

LOS ANGELES | The parking's easy and there are no lines at the concession stand: Most Americans would now rather watch films at home than in theaters, according to an AP-AOL poll. At the same time, almost half think movies are getting worse.

Hollywood is in the midst of its longest box-office slump in 20 years, and 2005 is shaping up as the worst year for movie attendance in nearly a decade if theater business continues at the same lackluster rate.

In the poll released Thursday, 73 percent of adults said they preferred watching movies at home on DVD, videotape or pay-per-view. With more than two-thirds also saying movie stars are poor role models — Russell Crowe's phone-throwing being the latest example — it may take more than a blockbuster or two to reverse Hollywood's slide.

Just 22 percent said they would rather see films in a theater, according to the poll conducted by Ipsos for The Associated Press and AOL News. One-fourth said they had not been to a movie theater in the past year.

Many of this year's big films — "Kingdom of Heaven," "The Honeymooners," "Cinderella Man" — have fizzled.

Those in the poll were most likely to be fond of comedies, followed by dramas and action-adventure movies. DAVID GERMAIN (AP)

Woman Kept Alive for Baby

Husband: brain-dead, pregnant wife would want to save the fetus

ARLINGTON, VA. | A brain-dead woman is being kept on life support in hopes that her 21-week-old fetus survives, and the woman's husband said he is certain that's what she would have wanted.

Jason Torres said doctors believe the fetus could have a chance if Susan Torres lives another month and her cancer stays away from her uterus.

He said he decided to keep his wife on life support when doctors at Virginia Hospital Center offered him the chance to disconnect the machines after concluding she would not recover.

"I hate seeing her on those darned machines, and I hate using her as a husk, a carrying case, because she herself is worth so much more," Torres said in an interview in Thursday's USA Today. "But Susan really wanted this baby. And she's a very — how should I put this? — a willful lady."

Susan Torres, a 26-year-old researcher at the National Institutes of Health, lost consciousness from a stroke May 7 after aggressive melanoma spread to her brain.

Torres said the fetus appears to be thriving, but his wife's doctors have told him they know of no cases in which a brain-dead mother with melanoma has delivered a baby. (AP)

Panel Submits Report To Improve Bus Service

WASHINGTON | Why is it that you can wait 20 minutes for a bus, then three show up?

The answer to that question — and, more important, a solution — could be around the corner.

A panel of experts took a look at Metrobus service. In a report presented to the transit agency Thursday, they offered recommendations — including using vehicle locator information, and cracking down on cars parked in bus stops — to keep buses evenly spaced.

The new report also calls for inspecting all buses before they leave the depot each morning, and making sure drivers fill out a comment on the condition of the bus after every shift.

The report also suggested Metro fix broken bus destination signs and do smaller paint repairs more frequently. As for the maintenance facilities, the report said working conditions need to be improved.

Boardmember Chris Zimmerman said the recommendations to consider doing something are helpful — but that now is the time for action, not just suggestions. (AP)

Stadium Labor Deal Done

Mayor Anthony A. Williams announced a labor deal Thursday for the construction of a new baseball stadium, calling it a "major milestone" that will create hundreds of jobs for city residents. The project labor agreement guarantees that small and disadvantaged local businesses — such as those owned by minorities — will receive 35 percent of the project's construction contracts, Williams said. The deal also pledges that many of the estimated 3,500 construction workers will live in the District. (AP)

Snipers Indicted For Md. Killings

BALTIMORE | John Allen Muhammad and Lee Boyd Malvo were indicted Thursday on murder charges for six slayings in Maryland during the 2002 Washington-area sniper shooting spree.

Each is charged with killing six people in Montgomery County between Oct. 2 and Oct. 22, 2002, including four who were shot and killed within a three-hour span Oct. 3.

If convicted, Muhammad could get death while Malvo, who was 17 at the time of the shootings, faces six consecutive life sentences. Both already have been convicted in Virginia.

Nationals ride series of comebacks to three-game lead in the NL East

NATIONALS | Every game, during the seventh inning stretch, pinch hitter Carlos Baerga likes to go into the clubhouse to ride the exercise bike and go over a pitcher's tendencies. Rookie Ryan Church likes to wipe himself down with a towel. Shortstop Christian Guzman prefers to simply get himself a drink of water.

Maybe these traditions are why the Washington Nationals have a major-league best 26 comeback victories this year — the main reason why the club leads the National League East by three games over the second-place Philadelphia Phillies, heading into this weekend's series against the Texas Rangers.

Or maybe not. Those seventh-inning-stretch routines aren't really anything special. They are just the same things the players do between every inning.

Either way, the team certainly looks different in the seventh, eighth and ninth innings.

As a team, the Nats have a better batting average, slugging percentage and on-base percentage and have scored 115 of their 268 runs after the seventh.

"We don't even talk about it," Baerga said. "We're still doing the same thing. We still play music before the game. We have fun."

What is it then? It's clear from the numbers that, late in games, the Nationals are doing something right.

Baerga said that it's something different each night. It might be Vinny Castilla coming up with an RBI single in the eighth inning like he did against the Mariners last week, or it might be Church with a three-run homer — just like the shot two weeks ago to propel the Nats past the Marlins and into first place. On Wednesday, it was Brian Schneider hitting a solo home run in the sixth inning to give the Nationals a 1-0 win over the Angels, and the day before, Jose Guillen's two-run homer led Washington's four-run eighth for the win.

Some things are hard to explain, and maybe this ability to score runs when it truly matters just falls in that category. Or maybe it's embarrassingly simple.

"Sometimes you win the game in the first inning, sometimes you win the game in the last inning," Guzman said with a smile.

IAN HERBERT

NEVER SAY DIE

As the innings go by, the Nats improve in just about all offensive categories:

- The Nationals have won 14 games when they trailed or were tied after six innings and have come from behind in 26 of their 39 wins this season.
- In the first six innings, the Nationals have a batting average of .253, an on-base percentage of .316 and a slugging percentage of .384. In the last three innings, they bat .278 with an on-base percentage of .361 and a slugging percentage of .428. They've scored 43 percent of their runs after the sixth.

Woods Measures Up

SWINGING AWAY: Tiger Woods is still in contention at the U.S. Open in Pinehurst after shooting an even-par in round one.

Despite his struggles, Masters champ still favored at U.S. Open

GOLF | The tee shot was pure power, right down the middle of the fourth fairway at Pinehurst No. 2, a perfect drive by Masters champion Tiger Woods.

The next shot Tuesday morning looked like it came from some guy who missed the cut in Dallas.

It went right of the fairway, right of the rough, beyond a sandy cart path and about 15 yards short of landing in the backyard of a two-story home.

His record alone would indicate that Woods is the betting favorite this week at the U.S. Open. But he's more of an enigma than an intimidator.

He arrived at Pinehurst as the No. 1 player in the world even though that was more a byproduct of the computerized ranking system. He won against two of the strongest fields on the PGA Tour this year, coming from behind at Torrey Pines and beating Phil Mickelson in that dramatic duel at Doral. The other victory was at the Masters, but even that came with some baggage.

He looked like the Woods of old with that stunning chip-in for birdie, when the ball made a U-turn on the 16th green, hung on the lip of the cup for what seemed like forever, then dropped for a two-shot lead. Then he looked ordinary with back-to-back bogeys, having to win in a playoff for the green jacket.

"The bogey-bogey finish at Augusta, you don't see that from Tiger," Luke Donald said.

But for all the questions about his game, and a long list of challengers — Ernie Els, Vijay Singh, Mickelson, David Toms, Sergio Garcia — Woods still managed to win the Masters and two other big tournaments. He began the Open yesterday with an even-par 70, placing him just three shots off the lead.

DOUG FERGUSON (AP)

D.C. native Browne shot a 67 Thursday.

TOP OF THE (RED) LINE

Olin Browne, a D.C. native and St. Albans high school graduate, is leading the field at the U.S. Open:

→ The 59 Browne shot in U.S. Open qualifying will never show up in any record book. The 67 he shot in the first round of the tournament certainly will. Staying on the streak he started in the final round of qualifying last week, the 46-year-old journeyman, winner of just two PGA Tour tournaments, shot 3-under to tie Rocco Mediate for the first-round lead Thursday. "I'm certainly very doubtful I'll get another opportunity to shoot 59 anywhere," Browne said. "I'd rather shoot under par at the Open than 59 just" messing around at home. (AP)

Mystics attendance drops with emergence of first-place Nationals

MYSTICS | With the Nationals taking much of the Washington sports spotlight, the Mystics' share has become even smaller. Nonetheless, first-year General Manager Linda Hargrove said that she's not "overly concerned at this point" about the team's decreasing attendance.

Through five games, the Mystics are averaging 10,928 fans per game. That's tops in the WNBA, but is still a decrease of nearly 2,000 fans per game from last season. The team's average attendance peaked in 2002 at 16,202 fans per game.

"Obviously we have more competition this year with the Nationals," she said.

Hargrove, who has yet to attend a Nationals game this season, admitted that there are some demographics of the team's fan-base that would be particularly attracted to baseball.

"I think we cater to families and I think families go to baseball games," she said. "I think we probably have more professional women who are interested in the WNBA, but I think that there are a lot of professional women who love baseball. So I would say that our demographics are very similar and we're in a big market, so hopefully ... there's going to be room for everything."

Taylor Is Still Gibbs' Problem

FOR THE NEXT THREE DAYS, Redskins coach Joe Gibbs will heap praise on Patrick Ramsey, Santana Moss and maybe even Tom Tupa if we are lucky.

One person he isn't likely to want to talk about though is Sean Taylor, who has been asked not to attend the team's three-day minicamp. Not that it mattered anyway; the "most researched draft pick" in history, as described by Gibbs last year, wouldn't have shown up either way.

No, Taylor's been busy doing something in Miami. No one's sure what, aside from the recent arrest stemming from stolen vehicles which led to his disinvitation to Redskins Park for the time being.

Sean Taylor's case exemplifies the new era of the NFL Gibbs might not be cut out to deal with.

Taylor's case exemplifies the new era of the NFL Gibbs might not be cut out to deal with.

The old Gibbs probably would have already released Taylor for not showing up to "voluntary" workouts or returning phone calls. Taylor's guilt is irrelevant for now since there would have been no run-in if he'd been working out with the team.

But the coach needs the safety, because Taylor is that talented, and because his release would leave the Redskins undermanned with a salary cap in place to stop a major move.

Hence, Gibbs has put up with a nightmarish offseason that will overshadow every other players' hard work during the minicamp.

The coach's patience is probably a prudent choice at this point. But come July 31, when training camp starts, a decision on Taylor will be needed.

The ramifications may be Gibbs' lasting legacy on his second tenure in D.C.

Matt Swenson, a lifelong Washingtonian, is the sports editor of Express.

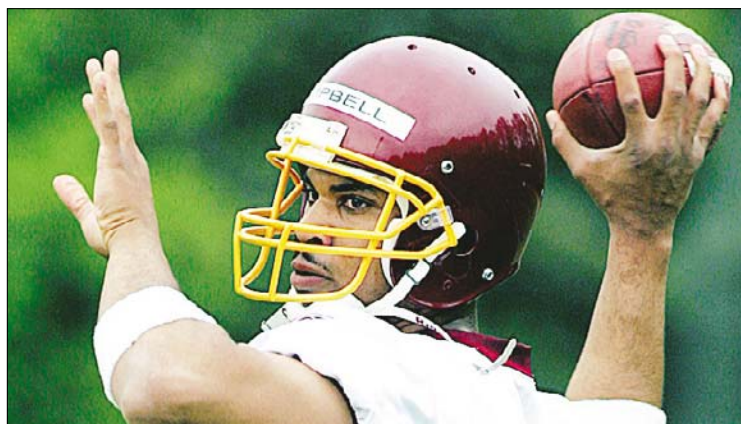

Tale of the Tape

Redskins say positives outweigh the negatives in turbulent offseason

REDSKINS | Two states of reality collide for one last time this weekend when the Washington Redskins hold a three-day minicamp.

One view says that the final event before vacation will wrap up a hugely successful offseason. Attendance has been high for the voluntary practices, meetings and conditioning sessions, to the point that coach Joe Gibbs has decided to practice just once a day — instead of twice — when the minicamp opens Friday.

"I think we've had a great offseason," Gibbs said Thursday. "Our team's in very good shape. ... I appreciate the way they've worked, their attitude and everything. We're going to keep our work hard and short."

The other view says the Redskins have endured a miserable offseason dominated by unpleasant off-the-field headlines. Laveranues Coles and Rod Gardner demanded trades, although Gardner is still waiting for his. LaVar Arrington accused the team of mishandling his knee injury. Two of Gibbs' "core Redskins," Fred Smoot and Antonio Pierce, left via free agency. Santana Moss, acquired in the Coles trade, refused to report for offseason work until he got a new contract. The team was docked two days of practices because the workouts were deemed too physical under offseason rules.

Then there was Sean Taylor, who earned a category all to himself. The safety had two court appearances over a drunken driving arrest — all charges were eventually dismissed — then boycotted the offseason workouts and refused to return even Gibbs' phone calls. He was later arrested in Miami on a felony charge involving a firearm two weeks ago, prompting Gibbs to excuse Taylor from the rest of the offseason work.

"For the guys that are here and the coaches, we don't even realize that stuff happened," tackle Jon Jansen said. "There's always going to be external factors. For now, this team has done a great job of letting those things take care of themselves and ignoring them and only doing what we can control." (AP)

Guillen's still bitter over last season.

Guillen Rips L.A.'s Manager

NATIONALS | Jose Guillen arrived with the Nationals earlier this week insisting he had nothing bad to say about his former team.

By the time he left late Wednesday night, he certainly had said plenty about Los Angeles manager Mike Scioscia. "I have no respect for him anymore, because I'm still hurt from what happened last year," Guillen said. "Mike Scioscia to me is like a piece of garbage. He can go to hell."

Scioscia could not respond.

Tuesday night, Washington manager Frank Robinson asked the umpires to check Brendan Donnelly's glove, and the Angels' reliever was ejected for having pine tar on it. Scioscia came onto the field and yelled at Robinson and both benches emptied, although no punches were thrown. (AP)

Home on the Range

34 years later, D.C.'s baseball team is once again playing in Texas

NATIONALS | Before the Washington Nationals, there were the Washington Senators. They left for Texas after the 1971 season — and now, the team that abandoned the nation's capital is set to play the new club in town.

The Nationals are leading the NL East at 39-27 and have drawn more than 1 million fans to home games. The success and support were missing when owner Bob Short moved those old Senators.

"They never had a team that played consistent winning baseball, and you couldn't compare the crowds or enthusiasm with what the people are pouring out right now," Nationals manager Frank Robinson said.

Because the interleague series between the teams that starts Friday night will be played in Texas, instead of Washington's RFK Stadium, there isn't any sense of a grudge match, or even a budding rivalry. The Nationals are, after all, last year's Montreal Expos and not the old Rangers.

"I'd have a lot more in the way of nostalgia and memories if we were going there to play because I've never been back to that stadium," said Tom Grieve, a first-round draft pick of the Washington Senators who moved with the team to Texas.

Grieve went on to become the Rangers' general manager and now is one of the team's broadcasters.

Grieve made his major league debut with the Senators in the final three months of 1971, and remembers it was "a lousy team." Even with Ted Williams as the manager and Frank Howard in the lineup, the Senators weren't winning and fans weren't showing up.

So Short took the team away, moving the Senators to a quickly renovated minor league stadium in Texas, about halfway between Dallas and Fort Worth.

Things are quite different now. In fact, only three current Rangers were even born when the Senators were playing in Washington. (AP)

United Catches Fire

D.C. finds its offense just in time to face unbeaten Revolution

UNITED | So D.C. United did have the goals in them after all, and they could not have come at a more important juncture.

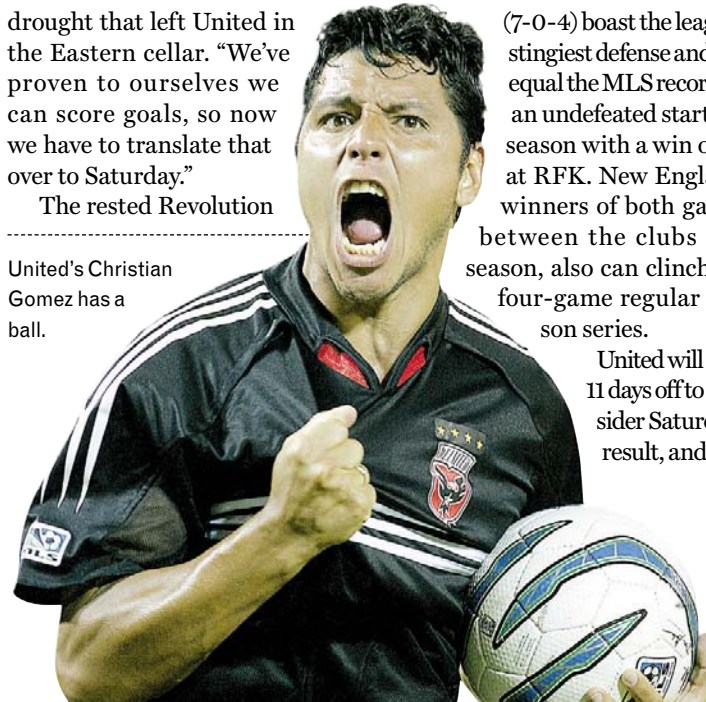

Not only did the team's four-goals-in-42-minutes outburst help United recover from multiple deficits and defeat Chicago, 4-3, on Wednesday night, it put the reigning MLS champions (4-4-4) on more confident footing heading into Saturday's anticipated rematch with undefeated New England.

"It was definitely huge to get a little momentum going. It's been a while since we've scored" midfielder Josh Gros said, referring to the now-shattered 324-minute drought that left United in the Eastern cellar. "We've proven to ourselves we can score goals, so now we have to translate that over to Saturday."

The rested Revolution

United's Christian Gomez has a ball.

(7-0-4) boast the league's stingiest defense and can equal the MLS record for an undefeated start to a season with a win or tie at RFK. New England, winners of both games between the clubs this season, also can clinch the four-game regular season series.

United will have 11 days off to consider Saturday's result, and that mental edge could be critical.

It was emotion and commitment, not tactics or skill, that fueled Wednesday's resurgence, according to United Coach Peter Nowak.

"If you put heart behind it and you put in this kind of effort, we're a pretty dangerous team," he said.

It was a collective effort on Wednesday night, as each player involved himself in the attack, highlighted by the late game-winner crafted by unheralded defenders Bobby Boswell and David Stokes.

Something similar will be required to solve the league's best team on Saturday. BRIAN STRAUS

IMPORTED OPPONENT: United announced yesterday it would play English Premier League champions Chelsea in an exhibition match on July 28 at FedEx Field. (EXPRESS)

Pistons' Hamilton Is the Man Behind The Plastic Mask

NBA FINALS | Richard Hamilton's clear, plastic mask has become his trademark, as distinct as his ability to curl around screens and make mid-range jumpers.

Detroit's shooting guard considers the device protecting his thrice-broken nose as simply another piece of equipment.

"It's just like a headband now," Hamilton said. "I wore it all last year. This year, I wear it because I didn't want to have setbacks — because having to have two surgeries last year wasn't cool at all."

The Pistons are glad he's healthy because, trailing the Spurs 2-1, they need him if they want to win their second straight NBA title. (AP)

VENGEANCE AND HONOR: Christian Bale makes an intelligent, driven Batman in Christopher Nolan's earthbound "Batman Begins," the fifth in an inconsistent series.

Dark Knight of the Soul

The new
'Batman' looks good in black

FILM | Christopher Nolan's "Batman Begins" disdains the mindless camp and compulsive weirdness that mostly characterized its quartet of predecessors and unapologetically positions its hero at the dark end of the street.

With Christian Bale in the title role, this is a film noir Batman, a brooding, disturbing piece of work that ends up crafting a world that just might haunt your dreams.

Nolan's intention is to create a myth grounded, as much as myth can be, in plain reality. A film that underlines the notion that Batman is that unlikely comic-book hero who does without super powers, someone, the director has said, who "really is just a guy that does a lot of push-ups." A heck of a lot of push-ups.

"Batman Begins" shows us in great detail how Wayne became phobic about bats as a small boy, saw that phobia contribute to his parents' untimely death and, driven by despair, ended up fighting the world in a prison in Bhutan.

It's there that Wayne meets the shadowy Ducard (Liam Neeson), the emissary of Ra's al Ghul and the sinister League of Shadows, a group fanatically dedicated to the stamping out of evil.

They offer to make him one of their own, and in the group's Himalayan redoubt Wayne learns more than ninja fighting techniques and methods of psychological warfare. He learns that embracing his own fear, specifically that old phobia toward bats, will be the key to his transformation.

Once Wayne returns to Gotham and sets his mind on being Batman, the noir possibilities of a black-caped avenger and a city at night help things immeasurably. Not only does production designer Nathan Crowley's "Blade Runner"-influenced look suit the film, but the specifics of Batman lore — the cave, the car, the suit, the swooping late-night flights — benefit from that dark treatment as well.

The Gotham scenario also showcases the best of "Batman's" supporting cast. On the side of light, both Michael Caine as Wayne family retainer Alfred Pennyworth and Morgan Freeman as the film's version of James Bond's armorer Q make this kind of acting look easier than it is.

On the side of darkness, Cillian Murphy, last seen in Danny Boyle's "28 Days Later," is terrifically chilling as the evil Dr. Jonathan Crane and his alter ego the Scarecrow, who can turn a simple burlap sack into an object of total dread.

Love Is a Battlefield

'My Summer of Love' tracks an explosive teenage romance

FILM | "My Summer of Love" is reminiscent of filmmaking in the late '60s and early '70s, when making movies about people and relationship was paramount.

But the intensity of the bond that forms between teenagers Mona (Nathalie Press) and Tamsin (the beautiful, blue-eyed Emily Blunt) feels immediate and relevant.

Director Pawel Pawlikowski seems to grasp the ways in which girls' friendships at this age can buzz with the excitement and emotional interdependency of a love affair.

When they meet in the sun-scorched countryside of Yorkshire, England, they're complete opposites. Mona lives above a pub with her older brother (Paddy Considine), who has found the Lord post-prison.

TOGETHER FOREVER: Nathalie Press and Emily Blunt make impressive debuts.

Enter Tamsin, who literally rides up to Mona on a white horse, invites her over to her ivy-covered estate and announces she's been suspended from boarding school. "Apparently I'm a bad influence on people," she declares flippantly, which we'll learn is an immense understatement.

Tamsin quotes Nietzsche and plays Edith Piaf records for Mona. They spend their afternoons smoking cigarettes and drinking red wine on the tennis court before moving on to make-out sessions and magic mushrooms.

But Tamsin herself is intoxicating to Mona, and before the summer is over the two girls are declaring their undying love — and threatening to kill each other if either of them leaves.

Until things turn ugly, everything about their summer is completely believable, and a joy to watch unfold. Press and Blunt have an effervescent chemistry together that bodes well for both actresses; if this is what each is capable of in her first movie, the possibilities are mind-boggling. CHRISTY LEMIRE (AP)

Even Hotties Get the Blues

FILM | Heather Locklear's stunning looks and winsome personality remain in full bloom in "The Perfect Man," though the filmmakers try to dull her down by making her a single mom with an emotional bent for hooking up with losers.

Even so, the woman you see on screen should have men lined up around the block. That's the first fatal flaw to "The Perfect Man," starring Hilary Duff as Locklear's teenage daughter, who tries to by creating an ideal — but fictional — beau.

Duff's Holly Hamilton is tired of the uprooting each time her mom, Jean (Locklear), moves the family after bad breakups with men.

When the latest jerk dumps her, Jean relocates with Holly and her younger daughter, Zoe (Aria Wallace), to New York City, where they find an oddly spacious and charming apartment on a lowly baker's salary.

In New York, Holly makes instant friends with another student, Amy (Vanessa Lengies), who becomes Ethel to her Lucy.

To keep Jean's lovesick blues at bay, Holly creates the perfect suitor, based on Amy's uncle, classy restaurateur Ben (Chris Noth). Fictional Ben sweeps Jean off her feet with flowers, e-mails and online heart-to-hearts.

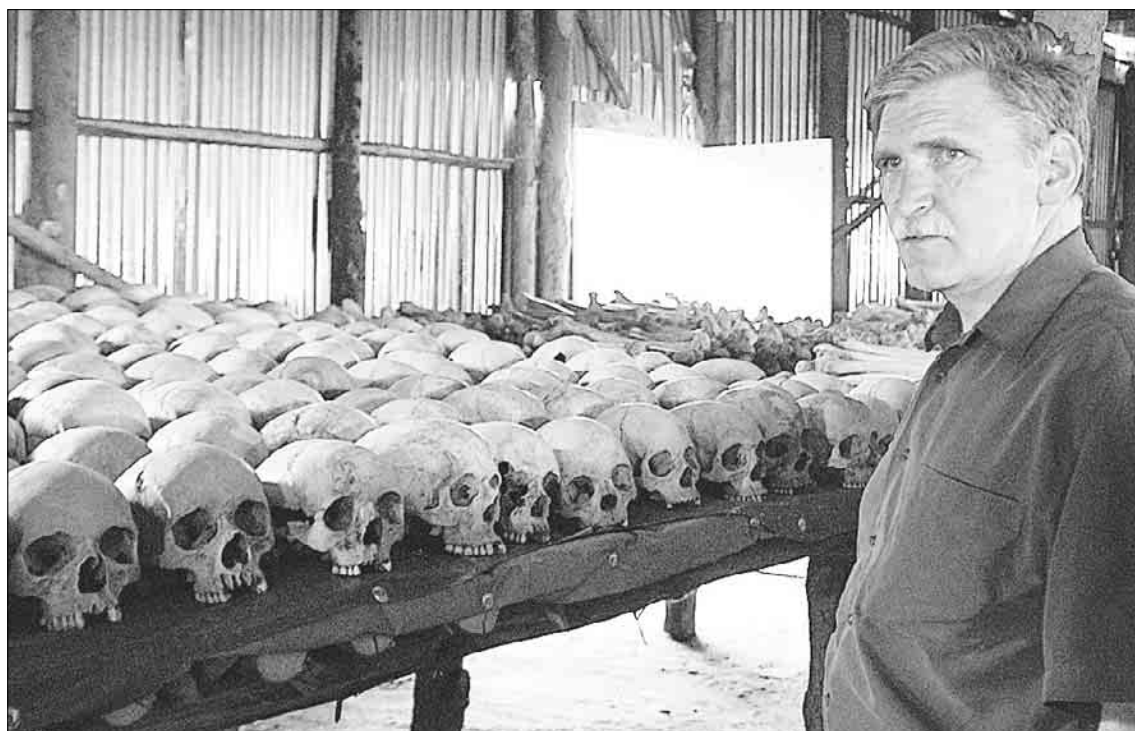

The proverbial rocket-science degree is not necessary to figure out who the real perfect man for Jean might be.

The saccharine is thickly and sickly applied (that's the film's second flaw) reaching a gag-reflex zenith with a nauseating mother-daughter dance montage.

Now someone should do the adults a favor and come up with a smart romantic comedy starring Locklear and Noth.

WHAT REMAINS: Gen. Dallaire was haunted for a decade by his time presiding over a country that was busy destroying itself.

Prime Witness

The U.N.'s man in Rwanda takes a journey back into hell

FILM | In 2004, a still-scarred Rwanda hosted a commemoration of the genocide that had scorched the country 10 years earlier. Among the guests was Gen. Romeo Dallaire, the Canadian sent in by the U.N. to keep the peace. His forces consisted of 800 men and his power to stop the ensuing horrors was virtually nil as Dallaire pleaded with the United States, the United Nations and other powers to step in.

"Shake Hands With the Devil" is filmmaker Peter Raymont's riveting documentary of Dallaire's return to the land he watched destroyed before his very eyes. The film opens at Landmark E Street Cinema on Friday for a weeklong run.

Was it difficult to get Mr. Dallaire to agree to be filmed?

It took me five years of phoning, e-mailing, writing letters, sending faxes. He wasn't ready to talk to a filmmaker until he had written his book, worked on some of his psychological problems and testified at the International Criminal Court for Rwanda in Arusha, Tanzania.

One day I literally bumped into the general in an airport elevator and we had an hour to talk. This broke the ice and led to a very productive, trusting relationship which has grown and built over time.

How do Rwandans feel about him today?

I was pleasantly surprised to find that many Rwandans understand the difference between the apathy of the international community and Dallaire's brave stand. He stayed when the U.N. ordered him out and saved many lives.

What was the journey like for you and your crew?

Emotionally and physically exhausting. Spending from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. with the general and his wife every day for 12 days was exhilarating and a great privilege. Watching the footage later in the cutting room was overwhelming.

It's such a beautiful land. It seems unfair to say, but that makes the ugliness that unfolded there so much more heartbreaking.

Yes — Rwanda was called the Switzerland of Africa. There is enormous irony of such horror occurring in such a beautiful place. It reminded me that Germany was also the home of Beethoven.

Does Dallaire think — do you believe — anyone in his place could have prevented what happened?

He speaks very eloquently [on that subject] in his book and in our film. I feel that if he had raided those arms caches the extent of the killings certainly might have been much less. Such a bold act would have caught the Interhamwe off guard and perhaps the killings would not have been nearly as extensive as they were.

How is Mr. Dallaire's emotional state now?

Much improved, though he still worries that the other shoe might drop. Elizabeth, the general's wife, has said that she feels the process of collaborating on the film and touring with his book has been very useful for him psychologically.

Is his work in the international community fulfilling his goal of multi-lateral peacekeeping?

Yes, I think he is having a very strong impact. ARION BERGER

Local DJ and BET personality BIG TIGGER is back home. In its fourth year, his “Annual Celebrity Classic” designed to raise awareness of and funds for HIV/AIDS spans the entire weekend. It’s around town, so hit www.bigtigweekend.net for locations.

You can usually catch your favorite athletes and celebs in chill mode at DREAM. And for this evening, names like Allen Iverson, Carmelo Anthony, Vivica Fox and Gabrielle Union have been dropped.

If the promise of celebrities isn’t enough to detach your bum from the couch, then do it for the kids. More than 75 developmentally disabled children perform Bill Harley’s musical “I’M GONNA LET IT SHINE: A GATHERING OF VOICES FOR FREEDOM.” Sure, technically the show isn’t part of the nightlife scene, still noon at the George Washington Masonic Memorial is going to rock.

Darian Morgan is “Big Tigger” to you. The DJ hosts a fund-raiser.

And so long as we’re throwing out things that aren’t night-life-y, LEWIS BLACK’s “Nothing’s Sacred Tour” stops one mo’ gain at Warner Theatre.

Say you simply love the nightlife and got to boogie. Well, we know the feeling. Fortunately, the usual conventions are in place at MOON LIGHT, a new night at Vida Lounge with beats by DJ Gaurav, formerly of Air.

SATURDAY

Before midnight comes noon — for most people anyway. Get it started early — kiddies welcome — and take in some free performances as part of “WORLD REFUGEE DAY” at the National Geographic Society. Performances on the indoor and outdoor stages include Silk Road Dance Project, the Cuban band Havana Select; and song, dance and drumming from Cheick Hamala-Diabate Group.

Avenue is new to the D.C. club scene but its impression already runs deep. Relive the sounds of Motown with the MOTOWN REMIXED tour, starring D.C.’s own Dissident Display (Adrien Loving and Ayo) and DJ Smash at Avenue.

Tickets to Wolf Trap’s annual gala: half your kid’s college fund. Seeing TONY BENNETT croon: price-less.

ALANISMORRISSETTE brings 1995’s “Jagged Little Pill” to Baltimore’s Meyerhoff Symphony Hall and word on the street is it’s acoustic.

SUNDAY

Gotta have a pop? OLETA ADAMS gives “All the Love” at the Birchmere. Or maybe you’re a little bit jazz? LIZZ WRIGHT bares her soulfulness at Rams Head Tavern.

And save your energy, club kids — R&B sensation KEM and American Idol FANTASIA “Find Their Way” to the area by next week via B’more’s Pier Six Concert Pavilion.

THE ADVENTURES OF SHARKBOY AND LAVAGIRL IN 3-D

(PG, 94 minutes) Robert Rodriguez's 3-D movie for children, based on the writings of his preteen son, is astoundingly boring and, frankly, tedious to sit through. It's about a 10-year-old kid named Max (Cayden Boyd) who daydreams so intensely about his imagined superheroes, Sharkboy (Taylor Lautner) and Lavagirl (Taylor Dooley), that the fictional creations come alive. Max and his superpals find themselves (put on your 3-D glasses here) on Planet Drool, where Max must battle the nefarious Mr. Electric (George Lopez), a cheaply super-imposed head inside a metallic holder which fizzes with electricity. The dream-scape planet, with its cookie mountains and milky "stream of consciousness," is disappointingly mediocre. And the 3-D effects are unimaginative and eventually too obnoxious for the eyes. (DT)

BORN INTO BROTHELS (unrated, 85 minutes) British photographer Zana Briski comes to Sonagachi, the red-light district of Calcutta, and teaches photography to the children of prostitutes. As these boys and girls learn how to frame pictures, load film and accept Briski's techniques, they also learn to see their world differently. The movie is really about changing the perspectives of eight children in a hopeless world. (DT)

THE BRIDGE OF SAN LUIS REY (PG, 120 minutes) Thornton Wilder's novel about the mystical connections among five characters who fall to their deaths from a bridge in Lima, Peru, is incredibly moving. Not so this movie, which stars Robert DeNiro, Harvey Keitel, Kathy Bates and Gabriel Byrne. Director-adaptor Mary McGuckian tries to pump original spirit into the characters but never brings them to life. The casting is distracting. There's DeNiro trying not to sound like a GoodFella as he plays a Peruvian archbishop. The same problem happens with Keitel, who should be banned from playing any character from another time. Bates and F. Murray Abraham are the strongest players here. She's the wealthy marquesa, whose saintly, unrequited devotion to her snooty daughter is treated with ridicule in Peruvian society, and Abraham is the slightly vainglorious viceroy of Peru. But their efforts are ultimately pointless. (DT)

CINDERELLA MAN (PG-13, 144 minutes) Forced to work as a longshoreman to feed his family (including his wife, played by Renee Zellweger) during the Depression, down-and-out boxer Jim Braddock (Russell Crowe) jumps at the chance to take on a heavyweight boxer. When he wins, he faces world champion Max Baer (Craig Bierko). In a way, "Cinderella Man," based on a true story, is "Seabiscuit" in boxing gloves. But there's more to it than that: a Runyonesque glow, thanks to director Ron Howard and screenwriters Cliff Hollingsworth and Akiva Goldsman. Crowe's burly poignancy hits you foursquare in the ribs, right above the ticker. The abstract dance between his softness and physical power is the heartbeat of the movie, and it takes you through financial hardship, terrible times and some bloody battles with special grace. (DT)

CRASH (R, 100 minutes) The aftermath of Rodney King and 9/11 seems to sear the nostrils of every Los Angeleno in Paul Haggis' white-knuckle hatefest among characters of almost every ideological, cultural or religious stripe. Asians, Latinos, whites, blacks, rich and poor, Muslim and Christian clash in this multi-character story that features a huge ensemble cast. If "Crash" only showed the dark side of humanity, it would barely be worth bothering. But the movie is also about the best in people. As soon as we think we have some character's number he or she turns around and does something quite astonishing. (DT)

ENRON: THE SMARTEST GUYS IN THE ROOM (unrated, 120 minutes) Based on Fortune reporters Bethany McLean and Peter Elkind's "The Smartest Guys in the Room: The Amazing Rise and Scandalous Fall of Enron," Alex Gibney's blow-by-blow documentary retelling of what was, at the time, the largest corporate bankruptcy in history is by turns harrowing and hilarious. And nauseating, too. When you're not aghast at the allegations of misdeeds by Ken Lay, Jeff Skilling and Andy Fastow, or laughing at the sheerchutzpah of what they've been accused of, you might be sickened by reminders that this wasn't a victimless crime, but that thousands of employees and investors lost far more than their shirts. (MO)

HIGH TENSION (R, 85 minutes) Director and co-writer Alexandre Aja's horror film is a prolonged, strangely plotted bloodbath in which a terrifying man (Philippe Nahon) rips, tears and shreds his way through a family in Southern France. When he chains the family's oldest daughter, Alex (Maiwenn Le Besco), and takes her away in his van, house guest Marie (Cecile De France) jumps aboard to save her. A terrifying ride begins. Aja doesn't have a gift for horror suspense so much as a compleat geek knowledge of all the superior scare flicks that have preceded "High Tension." There is a twist that doesn't help matters, but it makes the so-so gorefest somewhat intriguing. (DT)

THE HONEYMOONERS (PG-13, 89 minutes) This African-American-ization of the classic Jackie Gleason-Art Carney

TAXING IMPORT: Sure, the French make better films about sex and ennui, but "High Tension" proves our slasher flicks rule.

TV show "The Honeymooners" is a really bad idea that turned out even worse. In the Gleason and Carney roles, Cedric the Entertainer and Mike Epps are such hapless characters, it's a wonder the screen itself doesn't curl up in disgust. C the E plays central character Ralph Kramden as nothing more than a tubby schemer who drives a bus and who is married, beyond logic, to Gabrielle Union (as Alice.) As Ralph's sidekick Ed Norton, Epps' idea of comic grace is to walk through the movie with a fixed grin and perform pratfalls that wouldn't get a "C" grade in clown school. The less said about the story, in which Ralph attempts several hare-brained schemes (entering a dog in a greyhound race, buying an old-time trolley), the better. In memory of Gleason's oft-repeated line, "To the moon, Alice," I'd like to suggest the same lunar destination to the studio geniuses who thought up this project. (DT)

HOWL'S MOVING CASTLE (PG, 110 minutes) Fans of Japanimation icon Hayao Miyazaki ("Spirited Away") are more likely to be wowed by his feature-length, "Yugio-Oh!"-flavored cartoon than are fans of British author Diana Wynne Jones' dark and oh-so-tweedy book, on which it is ostensibly based. While not without its visual charms (particularly as regards the castle of the title, which walks around on four spindly legs), the movie — about a young girl (voice of Emily Mortimer) who seeks refuge in the mobile home of a misunderstood wizard (Christian Bale) after she's been turned into an old woman (Jean Simmons) by a witch (Lauren Bacall) — bears no more relation to the novel than gummy bears do to grizzlies. Catering to kids and anime fan boys, this Disney-safe "Howl" is anything but moving. (MO)

THE INTERPRETER (PG-13, 135 minutes)

Sydney Pollack's thriller rides for a long time on a compelling premise: the possibility of an assassination in the United Nations' General Assembly. U.N. interpreter Sylvia Broome (Nicole Kidman) gets wind of a plot to kill an African leader. As a straight-ahead thriller, the movie is enjoyable and stirring much of the time. But Kidman's character is schematically conceived, and Sean Penn's suspicious federal agent makes an interesting but not emotionally involving foil. (DT)

KICKING & SCREAMING (PG, 87 minutes) Never one to let weak material stand in the way of getting laughs, Will Ferrell manages to come up with a few great comic bits playing the inept coach of a youth soccer team. Ultimately, though, his anarchic genius is wasted in a kiddie comedy in which everybody learns something in the end — about teamwork, about how having fun is more important than winning and about the kind of movie not to put someone in who has Ferrell's slyly subversive humor. (MO)

KINGDOM OF HEAVEN (PG-13, 138 minutes) Ridley Scott's epic, about the battle of wills between Balian of Ibelin (Orlando Bloom), a 12th-century French crusader charged with protecting Jerusalem

A NON-NOVEL APPROACH: Hayao Miyazaki's rich anime fantasy "Howl's Moving Castle" bears almost no relation to the tweedy book on which it is based.

from Muslim leader Saladin (Ghassan Massoud), is a powerful visual experience. It's also just another digitalized, live-action cartoon. The movie is reduced to a backdrop for a boy toy with good hair and excellent backlighting. The real star is Massoud as Saladin, an Islamic hero of deep integrity. To introduce an archetype like this to Western audiences may be worth this whole flawed movie. (DT)

LADIES IN LAVENDER (PG-13, 104 minutes) Maggie Smith and Judi Dench give outstanding performances as lonely sisters who nurse an injured young man (Daniel Bruhl) back to health after he washes up on the shore of their Cornish village in this restrained British melodrama about love and letting go. Directed with a sure hand by actor Charles Dance, who clearly knows that the best way to play a scene is often to underplay it, the film never strays into mawkishness, even as it makes palpable the sisters' pain at the memories of love the stranger's presence dredges up, and the dignity with which they must ultimately accept what they cannot have. (MO)

LAYER CAKE (R, 104 minutes) Smooth businessman X (Daniel Craig) from London thinks he's got the perfect scheme. A rental agent by day and a cocaine and ecstasy manufacturer by night, he believes he can make the illegal drug trade work for him and not the other way around. But he's underestimated the will and orneriness of the gangsters around him. Debuting director Matthew Vaughn, who has produced Guy Ritchie's movies, has made a coolly detached, classic gangster saga about the clashing of rival empires, where the only thing worse than the killer before you is the killer waiting behind him. There's no escape in this world, only moments of personal courage, grace and luck. Ultimately, X realizes luck is the most precious element of all. As X, Craig is a compelling presence, a brilliant, slick opportunist who is rapidly learning that drug dealing, murder, treachery and blackmail are simply occupational hazards in this world. The principal sin is yuppie arrogance. And he's going to be a very lucky man to get out of this thing alive. (DT)

THE LONGEST YARD (PG-13, 114 minutes) This remake of the 1974 comedy-drama about a high-stakes football game between vicious prison guards and a rag-tag team of outmatched inmates benefits most from the smart-alecky wit of Chris Rock and the smirking slacker humor of Adam Sandler as genial convicts, even as it adds little to the original film. Still, the playing out of its predictable formula — is there anyone alive who doubts the outcome of that game? — is not without its rote pleasures. It's like setting up dominoes and watching them fall. There are no surprises, but a certain satisfaction in sticking it to the man — again. (M)

LOOK AT ME (PG-13, 110 minutes) This French seriocomic from Agnes Jaoui and Jean-Pierre Bacri is a movie of biting social observation. Lolita Cassard (Marilou Berry), the slightly chubby daughter of Etienne (Bacri), a successful, self-absorbed writer, has a desperate need for her father's approval. Her resentment and heartbreak over this permeates the trenchant film like a mournful song. The characters exude moral three-dimensionality; they're not built to behave or please us. And because of this freedom, we watch with a sort of bemused anxiety, not sure what the next moment will bring. But this uncertainty attunes us to the small, passing graces. (DT)

LORDS OF DOGTOWN (PG-13, 105 minutes) Written by former skateboarder Stacy Peralta and directed by Catherine Hardwicke of "Thirteen" fame, this fictionalized account of skateboarding's rise in mid-1970s Venice, Calif., is rude, aggressive and disrespectful of authority. It's dirty, loud, randy, obnoxious, destructive and at times clinically insane. In other words, true to its subject matter. But hey, so was the superior 2001 documentary (also by Peralta) "Dogtown and Z-Boys," with the added bonus that the earlier film didn't feel the need to beef up the already inspiring story of gonzo athletic innovation with such melodramatic plot elements as a love triangle, professional rivalries and the bathos of a dying kid. (M)

MAD HOT BALLROOM (PG, 95 minutes) Marilyn Agrelo's at-times stirring documentary follows groups of young participants in American Ballroom Theater's "Dancing Classrooms" program as they prepare for a climactic dance-off with student ballroom dancers from New York City public schools. It's a lot like "Spellbound," the spelling-bee documentary, in that it has as much to say about the contestants' aspirations and lives as it does about the contest. In the end, it isn't only about the dancing (although there's plenty of that, and it's pretty darn good) as it is about living and growing up. (M)

MADAGASCAR (PG, 86 minutes) The latest offering from DreamWorks Animation SKG, a tale of cified zoo animals that escape to the wilds of Madagascar from the Central Park Zoo, is high in antic energy and low on charm. Voiced with mostly perfunctory delivery by Ben Stiller, Chris Rock, David Schwimmer and Jada Pinkett Smith, the quartet of, respectively, Alex the lion, Marty the zebra, Melman the giraffe and Gloria the hippo experience a rude awakening when Alex's carnivorous nature puts their friendships at stake. But the story, which attempts to laugh its way out of the fact that some animals eat each other, never really resolves its central conflict, which arises from the inescapable fact that it's a dog-eat-dog world. (M)

MONSTER-IN-LAW (PG-13, 101 minutes) It doesn't seem right that Jane Fonda, playing the titular harridan, Viola Fields, allows her character, a woman bent on sabotaging the impending nuptials of her doctor son (Michael Vartan) to an impoverished artist (Jennifer Lopez), to be consistently upstaged by her own wisecracking personal assistant (Wanda Sykes). Shouldn't the character of Viola be a scenery-chewing comic shrew? She's not. Just a tiresome and unpleasant woman who could take some tips on how to dish the competition from her smart-mouthed secretary. (M)

MR. & MRS. SMITH (PG-13, 112 minutes) The premise is admittedly slight: Husband-and-wife hit men (Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie) are hired to kill each other as bullets and romantic sparks fly. Nevertheless, Pitt and Jolie's monumental charisma, coupled with director Doug Liman's stylishly jaundiced staging, makes this allegory of modern love and marriage a summer diversion that's fast-paced, fun and sexy enough for the multiplex crowd and blackhearted enough for those with a taste for something more acidic. It's a grown-up popcorn movie. (M)

TORREMOLINOS 73 (Unrated, 91 minutes) It's hard to say whether Javier Camara is funnier as the nebbishy encyclopedia-salesman-turned-filmmaker behind the camera or as his own leading man in the series of Super-8 sex films that are at the heart of this charming serio-comic film from Spanish writer-director Pablo Berger. Camara's character, who is forced to make sexually explicit "documentaries" starring himself and his wife (Candela Peña) when his boss (Juan Diego) phases out his sales job, is disconcerted to discover that his little science films are huge hits in Scandinavia's adult entertainment world. But that's not his biggest surprise, as Berger's film takes a sharp turn toward more serious subject matter, choosing a bittersweet conclusion over easy laughs. (M)

SAHARA (PG-13, 124 minutes) Indiana Jones, Matthew McConaughey is not. But he has been to the gym. This seems to be the essential glory in this woeful action film. As master explorer Dirk Pitt, he's determined to unearth an ironclad battleship from the Civil War era (Steve Zahn and Penelope Cruz are his sidekicks) that somehow wound up near Africa's Niger River. But he's even more determined to flex his assets and play tough on boats, trains and camels. It's not a movie, it's a training session. (D)

SIN CITY (R, 126 minutes) You could call this a pure product of the American death cult. It celebrates revenge of the most violent sort, it features heroes who don't merely kill but mutilate and torture enemies, its view of women is primeval. So do you say this film is perverse and should be banned for it will fascinate all the impressionable young with its aggressive nihilism? Or do you say it's so gorgeous and seductive, you just have to let it be what it is? I have no idea. (SH)

VERY SPECIAL FX: “The Shield,” starring Michael Chiklis, went out with a bang on the FX channel's fourth-season finale on Tuesday night. Thanks, Glenn Close!

Michael Palin takes viewers to exotic lands on his TV treks

JOURNEYS | Head for the hills with Michael Palin.

“Himalaya,” premiering at 9 p.m. on Monday on the Travel Channel, chronicles his six-month journey over the Khyber Pass from Pakistan to Afghanistan and then into India, Nepal, Tibet, Bhutan and Burma.

Known as the stammering Ken in “A Fish Called Wanda” and, of course, for “Monty Python’s Flying Circus,” Palin took up the BBC’s suggestion in the late ’80s to go “Around the World in 80 Days,” channeling his wanderlust into a series of documentaries.

Since then, he’s ventured with

TRAVELING MAN: Michael Palin gets to know the local elephants in “Himalaya.”

chatty verve in “Pole to Pole,” “Full Circle,” “Hemingway Adventure” and “Sahara.”

Now with the six-part “Himalaya,” Palin said his quest typically is to find the extraordinary in the ordinary and vice versa — “go out there as a sort of everyman ... just watching life as it goes by.”

“We just try to fit in, be as friendly as we can to the people who are there, so they know what we are doing and they know we are not trying to trick them, because the programs that we make are not investigative journalism in any sense. They are more a portrait of a country.”

Interviews with world leaders are not usually part of the agenda. Yet a chance to meet the Dalai Lama was irresistible.

“I was expecting to be rather overawed ... but as soon as he came in, it was just sort of something in the eyes, a little look of mischief ... it was just sort of like meeting a fellow Python,” Palin said.

JAMES DEAN: FOREVER YOUNG

James Dean starred in just three feature films, yet his iconographic image as the young rebel resonates throughout the world 50 years after his death at the age of 24. Narrated by Martin Sheen, FOREVER YOUNG celebrates Dean's life and career and the power of his legacy.

Gala reception at Discovery Communications World Headquarters following the screening. Evening is sponsored by affection for her father, Harold, is complicated by the fact that he's serving a 10-year sentence for weapons possession. Endearing scenes of Xiara are juxtaposed with Harold's gruesome prison environment, where his love of rhyming and rapping seem to be his one link to sanity.

COMEBACK DAD
A divorced father (Tom Selleck) reconnects with his troubled daughter in the 2003 drama TWELVE MILE ROAD (Sun., 9 p.m., CBS).

PATIO DAD
DECONSTRUCTION: SCIENCE OF THE BACKYARD (Sun., 9 p.m., Science) offers valuable know-how about home and garden, including the physics and engineering behind every lawn mower, the causes and cures for deck dry-rot, and even construction tips for building a greenhouse and a tree house. "Deconstruction" would be much easier to take without host Steve Hanneman's forays into "comedy."

CHUBBY YELLOW DAD

On back-to-back episodes of THE SIMPSONS (Sun., Fox), Ray Romano guest-voices as Homer's seemingly imaginary friend (8 p.m.), Winnebago madness (8:30 p.m.).

ON TV THIS WEEKEND

FLY GIRL

THE BUZZ ON MAGGIE (8 p.m., Disney) Maggie Pesky (the voice of Jessica DiCicco) is a 'tween-age resident of Stickyfeet, an animated suburban town in fly world. "Maggie" strikes a decent balance between cartoon anarchy and Disney's you-go-girl sermonizing, and Maggie's bugged-out status keeps the stories from getting too cute.

REASONS NOT TO LEAVE THE DEN
Turner Classic Movies showcases the film noir movies of influential director Nicholas Ray, including THEY LIVE BY NIGHT (8 p.m.), IN A LONELY PLACE (9:45 p.m.), and ON DANGEROUS GROUND (11:30 p.m.).

MARKETING

The Washington Post Advertising Department is in search of an experienced Product Manager to lead the development of the next generation of a sophisticated web product for our advertising customers. This Manager's primary responsibility will be developing and maintaining the product roadmap, driving decisions and development around features and functionality, managing the life cycle and tracking results from inception through implementation, including analysis, requirements, prioritization and business case. Follow-on work will include setting priorities for and implementing continual product and platform enhancements as well as developing new products for our marketplace as needs change and develop.

While a Master's degree is preferred, qualified applicants will have a Bachelor's degree with a focus in computer science, engineering, business, mathematics or other analytical field and a minimum 4-7 years demonstrated experience in product management, which must include multiple large-scale projects. Four years of system development and a proven ability to resolve business problems are also required.

The successful candidate will have a proven track record of strong leadership, project management and organizational skills, the ability to negotiate and gain consensus, and a solid history of delivering on time in on budget.

We offer a stimulating work environment and an opportunity for growth along with a competitive salary and benefits package. Qualified candidates should send a cover letter, resume and salary requirements to:

Border Patrol horses get special feed that protects desert land

Horses are crucial to the Border Patrol's enforcement efforts, especially in remote and rugged terrain. But what goes into the animals also comes out. And their droppings — if they're eating hay — can introduce alfalfa and unfamiliar weeds into the environmentally sensitive desert.

That's why the agency is feeding its horses a fortified, commercially prepared pellet so their waste does not disrupt nature's delicate balance. Much of the Arizona border includes sensitive land, such as Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument and Cabeza Prieta National Wildlife Refuge.

"Patrolling on horse is going to leave less of an impact, less of a footprint," said David Bemiller, public lands liaison for the Border Patrol's Tucson and Yuma sectors. And, in mountainous places, "you simply can't drive an SUV," Bemiller said. "So it serves a dual purpose."

Horses have been an integral part of the Border Patrol since its inception in 1924, but automobiles and aircraft lessened the animals' role. In recent years, however, there has been renewed emphasis on horse patrols, particularly in the Tucson sector.

Nearly half the Border Patrol's 205 horses are in the Tucson sector.

Since a mid-1990s crackdown in San Diego and El Paso, Texas, the sector has become the nation's busiest for illegal entries, with more than half of all such apprehensions coming along the Arizona border last year.

the border, but the diet of those animals is strictly oats and hay. There's no need for the special feed, said El Paso sector spokesman Doug Mosier, because "we don't have the same ecologically challenged or sensitive areas."

The only other spot on the border where horses are fed the pellets is on federal lands near Jacumba, Calif., said spokesman Mario Villarreal. The decision to give horses special feed in Arizona was a pre-emptive one, Tucson Border Patrol spokesman Luis Garza said. Officials wanted to be sure an environmental problem would not develop.

When the agency first discussed adding more horse patrols in Arizona's western deserts last year, "we suggested that was one way to minimize the impacts," said Curt McCasland, a biologist and assistant manager of the Cabeza Prieta refuge, an area larger than the state of Rhode Island.

McCasland noted special feed is necessary, "because you don't know what you're getting in the hay." ARTHUR H. ROTSTEIN (AP)

Schiavo Case

Autopsy Results

Forensic pathologist and attorney CYRIL WECHT was online Thursday to discuss the results of the autopsy of Terri Schiavo | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Wasn't there some diagnostic tool, such as an MRI, that could have determined the condition of Mrs. Schiavo's brain before her death?

Yes, the MRI is the best diagnostic methodology for intracranial, pathological processes. However, in this case because of some problems with equipment already in place on her body, it was not possible to use an MRI. (This is specifically referred to in the autopsy report, which I have read.)

Did the autopsy rule out that she had any rudimentary awareness or sensation of hunger, thirst or pain?

Yes. The brain damage was so massive and so extensive that such perceptive and sensory powers would have been completely lost.

I heard the attorney for Mrs. Schiavo's parents say that there is still a question as to what happened in the time between when her husband said she collapsed and when he called for an ambulance. Given your knowledge of the facts, would the time lag be significant?

Inasmuch as we do not know exactly what caused her collapse, it is not possible to express a valid medical opinion about what could or should have been done.

Did you have an opinion (you'd like to share) regarding the legal battle over Terri Schiavo while it was going on and has that been affected at all by this autopsy report?

The legal battles to my knowledge are over. The personal battles, the comments and opinions dealing with ethical, moral and religious issues will continue forever. It's the kind of thing that decades from now people will be revisiting and expressing their own opinions.

My opinions have not changed because I did not believe what the U.S. Congress and the president did were appropriate. I think they were politically motivated. And to their great surprise, the public opinions even from their own constituencies did not support them.

Hey Metro, Speak Up!

WHEN I USED the Montreal subway several years ago, I was impressed by the consistent volume and clarity of the automated station announcements. I always knew which station the train was approaching and I never missed my stop, despite my limited knowledge of the system and of the French language. On our Metro trains some operators speak so softly that the announcements are inaudible or barely audible, some announce the wrong station names, some butcher the names, and others announce them so loudly that riders have to cover their ears. Has Metro considered automating station announcements on its trains?

'Designing Woman' Delta Burke Adopts Orphan Hippo

Former "Golden Girls" actress RUE MCCLANAHAN is trying to prevent four elephants from being transferred from Chicago to Hugo, Okla., because they were exposed to tuberculosis. McClanahan, an honorary director of People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA), wrote a letter to state Rep. Ray McCarter asking him "to introduce an emergency resolution recommending against the importation of any elephants who have been exposed to TB in Oklahoma." McClanahan, an Oklahoma native, said she would prefer the four elephants be sent to the Elephant Sanctuary, a 2,700-acre preserve in Hohenwald, Tenn. McCarter said Tuesday he has not seen the letter, but "it would be difficult to do anything now." (AP)

OUCHIE Good Band Name: 'Kid Rock Broke My Glasses'

A disc jockey has sued KID ROCK for $575,000, claiming the singer punched him at an adult entertainment club in February. Jerry Campos of Cedar Hill, Tenn., is seeking $500,000 in punitive damages and $75,000 in compensatory damages in the lawsuit filed Monday in Circuit Court. On Monday, the performer pleaded no contest to criminal assault and was given a suspended sentence of 11 months and 29 days in jail. He also was ordered to complete eight hours of anger management classes and pay $180 to replace Campos' eyeglasses. The lawsuit claims the singer struck Campos, 30, on the left side of his face on Feb. 16. Kid Rock, who was in town to perform the song "I Saw the Light" during a memorial service for songwriter Merle Kilgore, was arrested at a nearby apartment. (AP)

Willie Nelson Takes First Step Toward Army of Clones

Country singer WILLIE NELSON is making a name for himself in a new field — stem cell research. The University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas is planning to establish the Annie and Willie Nelson Professorship in Stem Cell Research. An official announcement is planned later this week, a university official said. "That's a nice thing," Nelson said Tuesday. "I think everybody should do what they can to call more attention to that." The first Nelson professor will be Dr. Eric Olson, who chairs the medical center's molecular biology department. (AP)

Things You Didn't Know About Matthew Perry

MATTHEW PERRY and longtime companion Rachel Dunn have split up, People magazine reported. "There was no drama involved [in the breakup], just a commitment by Matthew to stay focused on his sobriety," a source told the magazine. Meanwhile, Perry — a former junior tennis player in his native Canada — is going back to the sports world as host of the ESPY Awards, which will be held July 13. Perry was a nationally ranked junior singles and doubles player in Canada. He has been a familiar face at matches played by his friend Jennifer Capriati over the years. (AP/EXPRESS)

Brooke Evades Scientology Ninjas With Skillful Spin

BROOKE SHIELDS reached out to end her war of words with Tom Cruise — a fight the actor picked on "Access Hollywood" by criticizing her use of antidepressants during postpartum depression, People magazine reported. "If he comes to see me in 'Chicago,'" Shields, who stars in the London production, said, "I'll see him in 'War of the Worlds.'" Though she holds that Cruise took his comments too far, she does "agree with him about his feeling on prescribing drugs to kids. ... I don't think Ritalin should be prescribed to kids." However, "postpartum depression is a different matter," she points out. "I think I'm more qualified to talk about that." (EXPRESS)

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Seek out a new friend with similar interests to yours. Certain activities are always more fun with someone special by your side.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might feel as though you need assurance or validation when it comes to a decision recently made. Openness can't hurt — but isn't required.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You can let go of your regal stature and inhibitions. Roaming free and wild once in a while is good for the soul and may surprise you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have trouble sitting still for anything. Try to take your restlessness and focus it into something positive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You might be sending mixed messages to someone you care about. Clear it up now, before it can no longer be straightened out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Don't concern yourself with the behavior of others too much. It would be best for you to concentrate on your own in your current situation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You can let down your guard. There is a close friend nearby with open ears, who wants to know how you really feel.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful that you are clear when sharing an irritation or annoyance. Someone is apt to take it personally.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Even a people-person like yourself needs time to be alone once in a while. Find that time for yourself, even with your busy schedule.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You need a little shove, especially in the workplace. Find something new and interesting that will revitalize your attentions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have a wonderful generosity and sympathy toward those around you. Don't let others take advantage of you as a result.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Keep a tight grip on your love for food and drink. Remember, gluttony is no virtue and moderation in all things applies to you.
